AN OLD WORLD FOUND BURIED IN THE NEW WORLD.

There must be, we should imagine, sufficient interest attached to the recent discoveries in Central America, to render any information connected with them however incomplete that information may be, peculiaris welcome to the general reader. The Altican him a long article on the subject, and from that paper we gather the following particulars. Messix Sterens and Catherwood proceeded for the purpose of investigating the monomental treasures which are scattered over the vast region of country referred to, to the bay of Hunduras, and made Copan and its vicinity their first halting place. They discovered at Copon a temple which seems to have been upon an extensive scale, one front of it being in length about 230 feet, and its side face about 180 feet. The interior of the temple is laid out with all the skill and regard to conver sence of the most practical architect, and the exterior presenting an elaboration of ornament, as well as refinement in sculpture, which altogether astourshed the travelers. There were many single columns most elaborately wrought, the work was deeply cut, and all in maxierly style.

From Copan the travelers proceeded to Kulrigi where they found many monuments chiefly of the same character as those at Copan, only the latter were much longer than those which were first visited. From thence they proceeded to Santa Cruz del Tuiche, to Guequetenange, to Occaringo, to Palenque, and to Uxmal. The whole forming a circuit of nearly three throusand miles in circumferance, and the greater part of which was thickly studded with extensive ruins, al of which were perfectly analogus to each other, although the variations in extent, ornament, &c., were

They were all evidently the labors of a people of a common origin, of apparently the same political, religious and social principles, of the same habits and associations of ideas, and certainly far advanced in civilization and refinement. Innumerable square columns or obelisks of stone were found in the course of their investigations, all of which were carved on every side with hieroglyphics, or with figures of animals or human beings, the former, in all probability, containing legends which, if they could be deciphered, would go far to explain the history of the people who had thus executed them, and the latter executed with such regard to the due proportions of figures as actually to astonish the travelers, who had not the most remote expectation of finding any branch of the fine arts in so forward a state. What added to their astonishment was the fact that all these monuments were found in the deepest recesses of forests of gigantic and closely planted trees, a proof of their intiquity altogether irre fragable, axit must have required centuries to bring such trees to their maturity and enormous growth, and it must have been after these cities were ruined and gone to destruction that these forests were allowed to take root in their precincts at all. These considerations, unaided by any other, must carry the mind back to a period of the world altogether startling to think of

An erroneous notion has got abroad that these antiquities, in the collossal magnitude of their parts, throw those of Thebes, Luxor, and other Egyptian monuments in the shade, and that the latter may now "hide their diminished heads;" it is believed also, that in architectural elegance, as well as in extent, these American remains far exceed those of Balbec, Palmyra, or even ancient Babylon itself. These surmises receive no countenance from the accounts given by Messrs. Stephens and Catherwood. The extent of the American monuments has rather regard to them as one mass promiscuously and almost evewhere spread within a circumference of three thousand miles, than to the extent or magnitude of any one specimen or set of roins; and nothing but a complete misunderstanding of the true details, or an intense love of the marvellous, could have brought about those false comparisons.

But the most important point to be ascertained is that of referring those monuments truly to any of those of the old world.

From the intricacy of their designs, and from many grotesque subjects of their sculpture, they may be referred to a more oriential source than that of Egypt : and the similarity seems to increase the further they are referred to the eastward. China and Japan present many of the images and groups which are found on these American monuments; and although with much that is grotesque in the latter, there is much that is beautiful and symmetrically correct, while in China and Japan, particularly the latter, the monstrous prevails in an exorbitant degree, there is really much that is common to the east of Asia and to the west of A.

With data like those before us, then, the editor of the Albion asks, can there be much difficulty in fortifying that most received hypothesis, that America was first peopled from the eastern part of Asia, the passage being made across Behring's straits? Where is the difficulty in assuming the theory that mankind, continually radiating from the primitive seats of first creation, and continually advancing beyond previous confines, should gradually arrive at the shores of the Pacific, should people the islands there, should cross the narrow straits -- so narrow that at midway both shores may be seen from the same position-should travel humors which occasion the peculiar fortor of a dead body southward, and give a human population to this continent .- [N. At the present time, when the counterfeiters of these celebra Pills are completely cornered, it is not surprising to And that they endeavor to get off their stock of spurious pile under any name. It is not the first time that the Poor Indian has had to father the abortions of cunning

The remarkable cures that have been effected by Brandreth's Pills, have astonished the whole medical faculty many of whom have conceded that they are the greatest blessing that was ever given to the world.

The reason these celebrated Pills have such a universally good effect is because their action harmonizes with the uman body.

"THE CONDITION."

The condition upon which God has given health to man is a constant care to keep his stomach and bowels free from all morbid or unhealthy accumulations. The means to effect this must be those remedies which cleanse the bowels and purify the blood. Good healthful medicine is only a species of food; when the animals whose habits we have the means of observing, are sick, they wander through the fields, and make ction of those berbs which open their bowels and purify their fluids, which immediately restore their health

When a dose of Brandreth's Pills are taken, they are digested, and pass to every part of the system; but they leave the body when they have effected the intended pur-pose, and health and vigor are then insured. Mineral medicines may enter the system; but they are with difficulty got out again; and they always occasion pain and misery when they remain in the toby:

Whereas Brandreth's Pills are as innocent as a piece of bread, and are evacuated with the disease for which they

From the time we were born to the time we cease to oreathe, our bodies are constantly wasting, and constantly building up. The action of the atmosphere wears or wastes The food we eat the digestive organs convert into ond, which renews or builds up by its circulating power. Thus toe human body is healthy when the blood circulates freely, and when any thing prevents its free course through the veins, disease commences.

Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Fevers, Inflamations, are all owing to this, and all the troubles attending them could always be prevented by the timely use of Brandreth's Pills, as their very action at once tends to clear the circulation of all impediment, and remove every cause or occasion of impurity from the blood There are thousandsnay, millions-at this moment, in this country, and all other, whom we may really consider as half dead. They may be said to carry their death in their bowels and circulation. This is no imaginary circumstance. I wish it were. The thousands whom we meet every where with cadaverous looks, yellow skins and green eyes, speak in a language not to be mistaken, of the state of their stomach and bowels, and the consequent condition of their blood The body is thus, while in life, reduced to the condition of and the reason why some bodies are so soon in a putrid condition after death, is more from the quantity of impore humors contained in them at the time they expired that from any other cause. And who is there that will not allow, that if Brandreth's Pills had been employed so as to have removed those impure humors, that life might not have been saved? Whoever will but give this subject a very little consideration, will at once perceive the perfect identity between the putric homors before death,

MOFFAT'S VEGETABLE LIFE MEDI-cines.—These medicines are indebted for their name to their manifest and sensible action in purify ing the springs and channels of life, and enduing them wit renewed tone and vigor. In many hundreds of certified cases which have been mode public, and in almost every species of passage to which the human frame is fublic, the happy effects Maffat's Life Pills and Phanix Bitters have been and publicly acknowledged by the persons benefited and owere previously unacquainted with the beautifully philophical principles upon which they are compounded, and up if every form and description. Their first operation is to loose to from the coats of the stomach and howels the various impuratios and credities constantly settling around them, and to remove the hardened faces which collect in the convolutions of the smaller intestines. Other medicines only partially cleanse these, and leave such collected masses behind as to produce habitnal costiveness with all its train of evils, or sudden diarabora, with its eminent dangers. This fact is well known to all regular anatomists, who examine the human bowells after death; and hence the prejudices of those well informed men a gainst quack medicines—or medicines prepared and heralded to the public by ignorant persons. Bewant of Penters' The genuine article cannot be obtained of them on any pretence whatever. I never em-ploy them nor allow them to sell my medicines. And all itters put up in phials and small round bottles, purportas to be mine, are rank counterfeits

As some are base enough to fill the empty bottles with their stuff, and thus deceive the unwary, and some have attempted an imitation of my Bitters in papers; be careful

In consequence of these attempts at imposition, I have been at great expense in having new directions and wrap-pers, and in future the Bitters in papers will be done up in a different style. See that the cavelone has on it my name in full, "entered according to the act of Congress, in the year 1840, by S. O. Richardson, M. B., in the clerk's office of the district court of Massachuset's," and on the other side, "established in 1868, at South Reading, County of Maddans. of Middlesex, Massachusetts The border around the uside directions, (which are printed on white tissue paper) s so currously engraved that the words "Dr S.
